The London Times said, "If the United Nations had a house band it would be Pink Martini. Its retro style singing in many languages makes this Portland-based band an international phenomenon." Pink Martini last year toured the world with sold out performances in Tokyo, London, Paris, even Beirut and Istanbul. In September 2010, 50,000 fans jammed the Hollywood Bowl for their three performances. Pink Martini recently toured in South America and performed at the Kennedy Center in April with the National Symphony, and on New Year's Eve the band is giving two performances at the Walt Disney Concert Hall.

Thomas Lauderdale, the creator of Pink Martini, said, "Although we normally take the month of February off, when Helene and Jamie asked us to perform at the Annenberg Theater for the Palm Springs Art Museum Annual Gala, we wouldn't miss the opportunity." Raise a glass with us as we throw the biggest party of the year!
